Court funding decision dictates building plans

by Dan Sanderson
Staff Writer

Future expansion of the Crawford County Building hinges on the outcome of a Michigan Supreme Court decision for a lawsuit that the county has waged with the 46th Circuit Trial Court.

County commissioners, at a recent meeting, said they could issue $1.3 million in bonds which would be paid back over a 15-year-period to help expand the county building.

The funds would be used to build a two-story foyer at the entrance of the building, which would house handicapped accessible rest rooms and an elevator to bring the building in compliance with the American Disabilities Act (ADA). Other interior improvements would also be made in the building. Space would also be added to move central dispatch, the building and zoning offices and animal control into the county building.

"We're kind of painted into corner with the ADA stuff, but adding on to the basement so we can move central dispatch were logical decisions and it's the most that we can afford to do," Crawford County Administrator Paul Compo said.

Compo said the county will make its last payment on a 10-year financing plan for the county building's heating and cooling system this year and has three more years to pay off bonds for the jail expansion. The county's court house preservation funds, fees collected from traffic tickets which are earmarked for building maintenance and expansion, could also be tapped to pay off the bonds.

County officials are holding off on moving forward with the financing for the project pending the outcome of the Michigan Supreme Court case with the trial courts.

Supreme Court Justices heard arguments in the funding dispute between the 46th Circuit Trial Court and Crawford and Kalkaska Counties in May.

The 46th Circuit Trial Court covers Crawford, Kalkaska and Otsego Counties.

The court sued Crawford and Kalkaska counties for refusing to pay pension and post-retirement health care benefits for court employees.

Following a six day-trial in the summer of 2003, Judge Dennis Kolenda ruled that the benefits were necessary and a reasonable cost to fund the unified court. The Michigan Court of Appeals

Rally, Airshow to support troops

by Dan Sanderson
Staff Writer

Motorcycles will be rolling through the streets and vintage warbirds will be flying through the air next week to help support the families of National Guard troops fighting the war on terror.

The AuSable Adventure Rally and the Yankee Air Force are hosting a bike rally on Friday, June 23 and Saturday, June 24 in Grayling. The pair of organizations are raising money for Michigan National Guard's Family Support fund, a fund earmarked to help the families of deployed troops who experience financial or medical hardships. Funds are also being raised for the Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve, an organization which helps troops make the transition back into their civilian roles after being deployed.

The AuSable Adventure Rally, which is being held at Wellington Farm Park, begins on Friday. Bikers, including the United Auto Workers Rolling Thunder, will roll into town throughout the day.

The air show will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday at the Grayling Army

North Flight pilots navigate with night vision

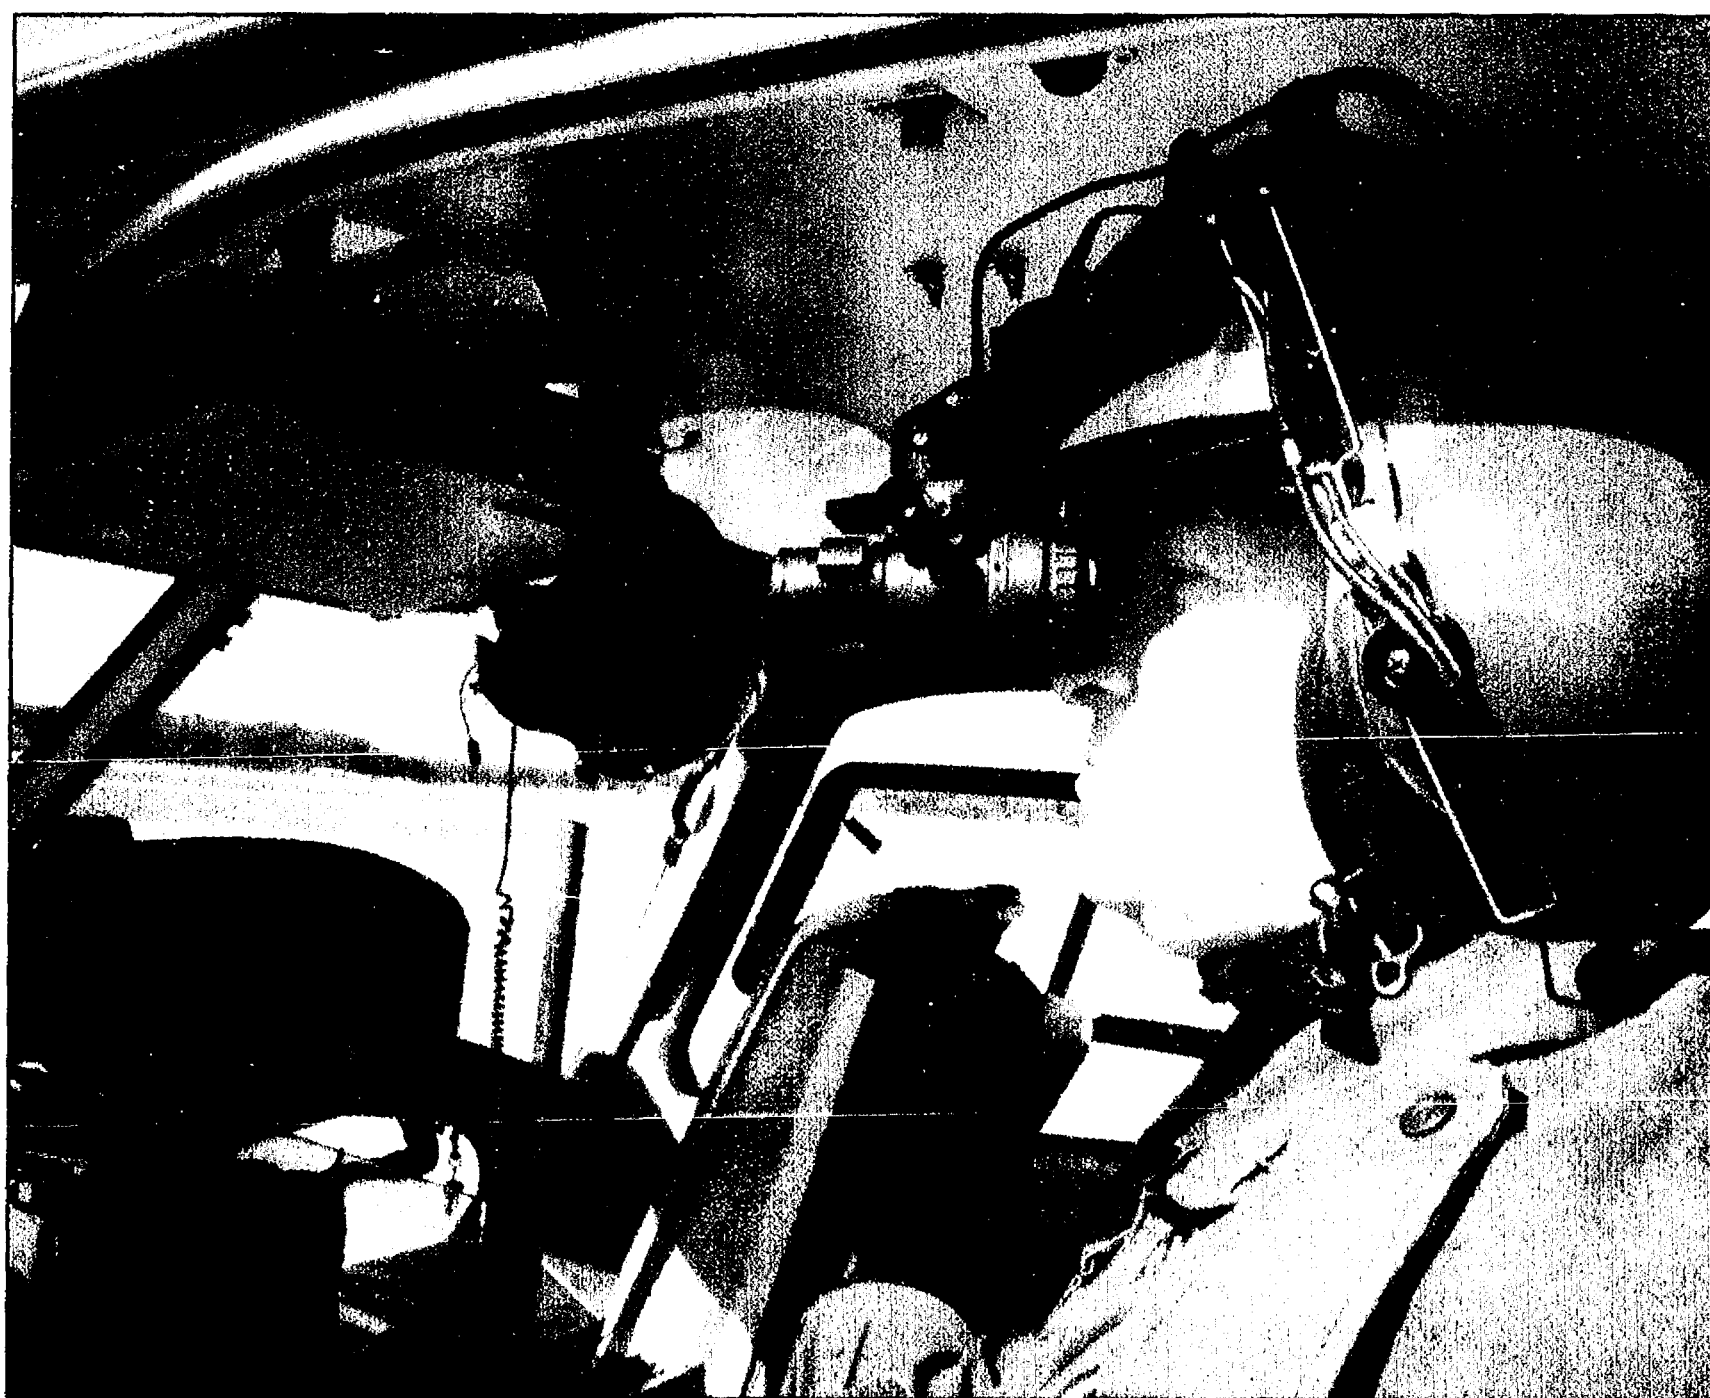

North Flight EMS Air Division continues to pursue patient and crew safety by introducing night-vision goggles for helicopter crews.

The air medical service, which marks 20 years of operations this month, began using the goggles on recent night flights. The goggles enhance eyesight from 20/200 to 20/25 during operations in the dark.

"It's important when you fly from here to an accident scene," said Carol Smith, RN, manager of North Flight Air Division. "There are vast areas of darkness in northern Michigan. It is a huge safety issue."

North Flight pilots and crews join a small group of air medical service helicopter crews nationally to start using the vision devices that have been used by the military for several years. Smith said a specially trained pilot from a Missoula, Mont., program visited Traverse City to conduct training.

Pilot Craig Nelson said the goggles allow the crew to see roads, power lines, rivers and even the Northern Lights. North Flight purchased two pair, so the pilot and one other crewmember

Men arrested for computer burglary

A pair of men were charged with breaking into the Frederic Elementary School last week and stealing lap top computers.

Larry Allen Love, 27, and James Edward Thompson, 23, both from Frederic, were charged in Crawford County District Court for breaking and entering a building with intent on Thursday, June 8. They face up to 10 years in prison if convicted.

Love and Thompson are accused of breaking into the Frederic Elementary School on Monday, June 5. A window in a classroom, where adult education classes are taught, was broken to gain access to the building.

Nine lap top computers were taken during the burglary.

Evidence gathered by Crawford County Sheriff's Deputies at the scene led to the arrests.

Mike Duncel, the business manager for the Crawford AuSable School District (CASD), said the lap top computers were being used for the

HUP Race to offer another year of community fun

by Matt Seager
Staff Writer

Take the passion, energy and scope of the AuSable River Canoe Marathon and condense it into about five minutes. Next, take the heartbreak of failing to complete the race and multiply that failure rate by about five.

That's the annual Hurry Up and Paddle-or-sink-Race in a nutshell. Except failure to complete a race isn't exactly heartbreaking. "Hilarious" may be a bit closer to the mark, as crowds watch paddlers in goofy costumes struggle to keep haphazardly designed, duct taped watercraft afloat.

The third annual HUP Race will take place on July 26, at 6 p.m., at the city park. For those who find the event's more famous big brother, the Canoe Marathon, to be a bit overwhelming at times, attending the HUP race is a great alternative or addition to regular AuSable River Festival activities. After all, it is being billed as "the world's easiest spectator race."

"I think we kind of cause a spectacle in the middle of town," said Dori Branson, the public relations representative for the race.

This year, the Grayling Chamber of Commerce has taken over hosting duties from the Grayling Uptown District Association. The race will be sponsored by AuSable Construction and AJD Forest Products. Despite the personnel change, the event will remain faithful to its past presentation.

This means that teams are required to piece together a seaworthy craft from the following materials: a piece of plywood, two eight foot long 2x4 boards, a pound of nails, and, of course, a roll of the world's most versatile adhesive: duct tape.

"It's just so much fun," said Branson.

Adding to the fun is the opportunity for paddlers to compete for a variety of awards, including "Fastest HUP-er", "Most Creative Design", "Best Costumed Paddler", "Sinker", and the ever dubious "Haven't Got a Clue What We Are Doing." New for this year is the "Almost Fastest" award, which goes to the second place boat.

Nonetheless, a lot of work is required before a paddler can even think about placing in the top two. No boats from the past two years may be resubmitted, so all participants must get creative and build a new craft.

Not only is creativity required for the boats, but costumed paddlers are being strongly encouraged this year.

Highlights from the past include Weyerhaeuser's "Strand Man," who was completely covered in wood chips, and AJD Forest Products' "Captain AJD," whose goofy super hero outfit was enough to impress the crowd, if not help him win the race.

To ensure that no funny business ensues on the water (aside from the inevitable comic sinking), three judges will oversee the event. How harsh will they be?

Well, one is real-life judge Janet Allen, so anyone who has been in trouble with the law in Crawford County can report on her disposition.

At the same time, the disposition of the attending crowd is sure to be quite positive, with the Chamber of Commerce tending to their every need. This includes concessions, including ice cream. Additionally, The High Society Wise Guys will be playing live music throughout the show. Local entertainer Chad Patterson will emcee the event.

"This is a family and community centered event and we want everybody to have fun," said Branson.

Any local families or businesses are welcome to sign up to compete, but the race is limited to 20 boats. Nine teams have already entered, so sign up quickly to get a place. Register at J. Dap & Co. of Grayling. A $60 registration fee covers the price of the canoe kit, which is available to be picked up upon registration.

Plans for animal shelter gain steam

by Dan Sanderson
Staff Writer

Local officials are rolling through the red tape in hopes of breaking ground for a new building for the Animal Shelter of Crawford County this summer.

The Grayling Township Planning Commission approved a special use permit which allows the shelter to be built on the Crawford County Fairgrounds property near the intersection of M-93 and Old 27.

Grayling Township Supervisor and Zoning Administrator Terry Wright said there were some people concerned that the shelter would compete with retail businesses. Planners, however, were convinced the products will only be sold to support shelter operations and make it convenient for animal adoptions.

"There going to have a retail operation on such a small scale that we didn't think it was a big concern and they're in a commercially zoned area anyway," Wright said.

The Crawford County Board of Commissioners is applying for a $330,000 loan and $20,000 grant through U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) on behalf of the Animal Shelter of Crawford County Board.

The Animal Shelter of Crawford County, Inc., a non-profit agency, has operated the shelter since 1991 when the county decided it would no longer run the shelter due to budget woes.

The shelter facilities are in dire need of repair and replacement.

The Crawford County Road Commission Board in January extended the lease for the current animal shelter through 2007, but have future plans for the use of the property.

County officials last week submitted its grant application and design plan to the USDA.

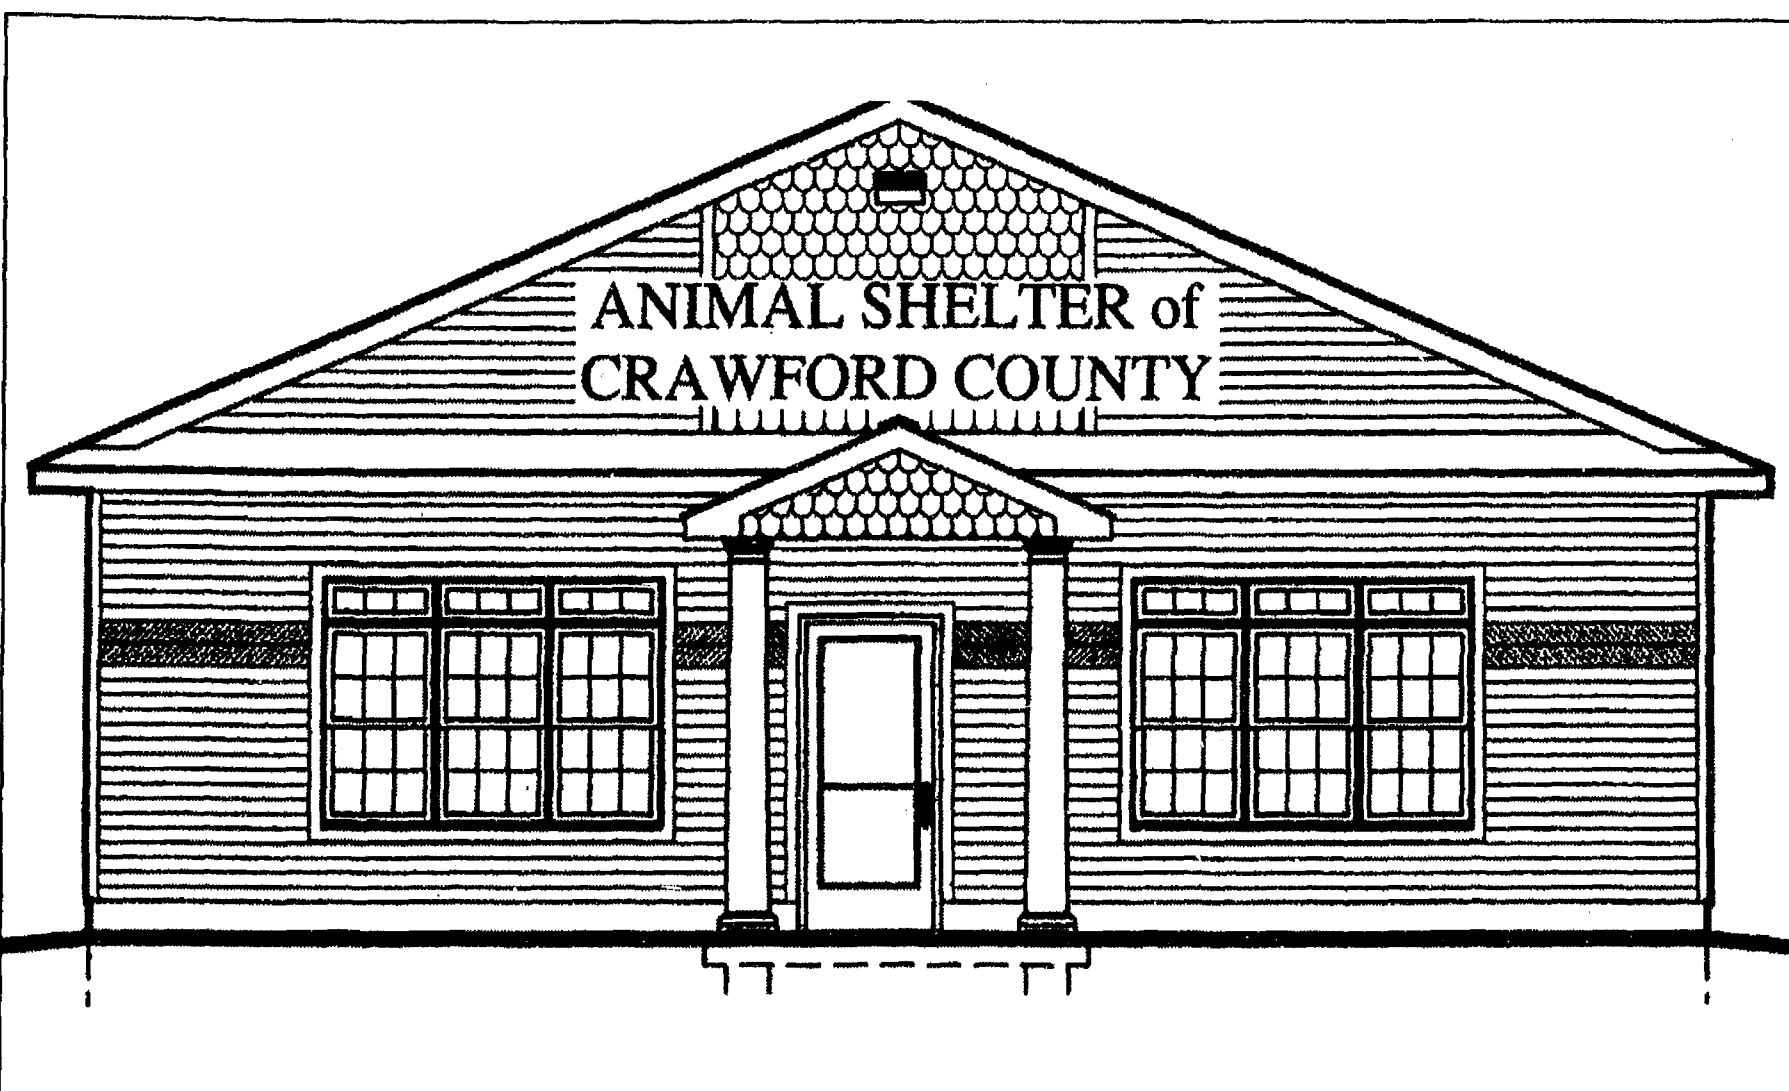

"We're dealing with the federal government and when you're dealing with the federal government there are a lot of hoops to jump through," said Crawford County Administrator Paul Compo.

The county board will pass a resolution to pursue the financing for the project at its Wednesday, June 21, meeting. The board will have to publish a public notice, allowing for a referendum period for anyone who may have objections to the project.

The county will then advertise for bids for construction of the planned 3,700 square foot facility.

"Hopefully, by this time next year, we'll all have a shelter, that we can all be proud of, that will be serving the community the way it should," Compo said.

The Grayling Township Planning Commission approved a special use permit which allows the shelter to be built on the Crawford County Fairgrounds property near the intersection of M-93 and Old 27. The new facility is expected to look like the above sketch.

Man convicted for having child porn

by Dan Sanderson
Staff Writer

A 30-year-old Grayling man already serving time in prison for a sexual assault case was convicted by a jury for 10 criminal charges last week stemming from a child pornography case.

A jury found Craig Michael Tunstalle guilty of four counts of possession of child sexually abusive material and four counts of use of a computer to commit a crime. He was also found guilty on two counts of resisting and obstructing a police officer. The jury found Tunstalle not-guilty on five other counts of possession of child sexually abusive material and five counts of use of a computer to commit a crime.

Tunstalle was initially charged with 69 counts of possession of child pornography. The counts were separated into their perspective courts files for the jury trial.

The jury concluded that Tunstalle was guilty for some of the child pornography charges because the images were saved on his computer. The counts he was found not guilty for involved the viewing of child pornography using the Internet. Stephen Conner, Tunstalle's attorney, argued that some of charges involved images that automatically downloaded on to Tunstalle's computer. He argued Tunstalle had to open and handle each message several times in order to delete them off the machine.

Tunstalle, testifying on his own behalf, claimed that his brother-in law and brother-in law's girlfriend used his computer, but could not recall their names at the trial.

In a move to show the graphic nature of the case, Crawford County Prosecutor John Huss had jurors view the photographic images that Tunstalle had on the computer just before they went into deliberations.

Tunstalle assaulted two Michigan State Police troopers on Oct. 26, 2005 when they went to his home to execute a search warrant. Tunstalle was under house arrest at the time, and did not want to go back to jail.

In March, Tunstalle was sentenced to serve three years to 15-years in prison for first-degree criminal sexual conduct and seven years to 20 years in prison for an incident which occurred in February, 2005 in Grayling Township.

Tunstalle faces a sentence of four years in prison for the possession of child sexually abusive material. The use of a computer to commit a crime carries a sentence of up to seven years in prison. Tunstalle faces a sentence of two years in prison for assaulting the state troopers.

Air plane lovers will also be able to see a 1940 Consolidated BT-13, 1943 Cessna L2 Spotter plane, 1943 Beach D18 photo reconnaissance plane and a 1990 L39 Czechoslovakian MIG trainer.

People will be admitted to the air show through the purchase of a AuSable Adventure Rally pin, which cost $10.

People will also be able to take rides on a B-17 or a B-25 for the cost of $425 per person, which covers the fuel and maintenance costs for the planes.

"We've actually had a good response for pre-arranged flights, primarily from the families of veterans," said Ilene Geiss-Wilson, the executive director of the Grayling Visitors Bureau.

Bikers in the Tribute Ride, which will leave Gaylord at 11:30 a.m., are expected to arrive at the airfield at 1 p.m. after making a trip through town. People are encouraged to line the streets and wave their flags to support the Tribute riders.

Following the raising of the flag by the Camp Grayling Color Guard, Maj. Gen. Thomas Cutler, Michigan National Guard Adjutant General, is scheduled to address the crowd.

The Michigan Museum of Military Transport will have a display of vehicles used during the Vietnam-era at Wellington Farms.

A military chaplin is scheduled to hold a Blessing of the Bikes ceremony, at 10 a.m. on Sunday, June 24, at the Stitsville Church at Wellington Farm Park.

adult education program since February, when a flood forced officials to replace computers the program was using.

Seven of nine computers have been recovered, and sheriff's deputies have leads on the two remaining computers. The computers are valued at $9,000.

Ironically, Dunckel said software on the computers automatically erase all of the information off the computers once they are shut down.

"The computers are basically useless and can only be used when they are plugged into our server at the school," Dunckel said.

CASD officials closed Frederic Elementary School in 2003 due to budget woes and declining enrollment.

The adult education and Frederic Head Start programs have been housed in the building.

School officials are exploring the possibility of selling the building.

ALMANACK

Michigan campaign spending flying high

POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS in Michigan this year are setting an all time spending record for the governor's office.

Add campaigns for United States senator, state representatives and senators, and a full ticket of state offices headed by secretary of state and attorney general and the amounts of political spending in Michigan alone boggle the mind.

In a word, political spending in American politics has become ridiculous. In another word, it also has become scary.

Four years ago, when Democratic Gov. Jennifer Granholm first won the executive office by defeating then-Lt. Gov. Dick Posthumus, almost $18 million was dumped into the race on behalf of both candidates, with Democratic forces spending about $9.3 million and the Republican side about $8.5 million.

According to a recent roundup of campaign spending reported by Associated Press Lansing bureau chief Kathy Barks Hoffman, that could be like chump change this year. Ms. Hoffman cites spending estimates for the 2006 campaign between Gov. Granholm and Republican Dick DeVos starting at $50 million and ranging up to $100 million. Those estimates are for spending by each candidate's individual campaign, plus money spent by both Republican and Democratic parties and political action committees on both sides.

That amount of money to elect a governor is frightening.

It's obvious somebody thinks winning the governor's office is worth a whale of a lot of money, and motivations likely are not limited simply to good government.

REPUBLICAN DEVOS is a man of independent means, and already has funneled an estimated $6 million or so into television ads, aimed primarily at getting Michigan people to know who he is.

The tactic has worked well for Mr. DeVos, who now runs even or a nudge ahead of Ms. Granholm in recent political polling.

The DeVos ad onslaught continues, but not alone any more. On behalf of Gov. Granholm, the state Democratic party started a counter offensive of TV spots which outline the great things Ms. Granholm has accomplished as governor, and blame most Michigan ills on Republican President George Bush.

In the campaign for US senator, the Republican primary between Detroit area pastor Keith Butler and Oakland County Sheriff Michael Bouchard will absorb some Republican money, but the real dollar signs will emerge in the campaign against incumbent Democratic Sen. Debbie Stabenow, who already has a few billion in a war chest built up over her six years in office.

Ms. Stabenow is the early favorite, as are most legislative incumbents, but if the race narrows in the home stretch, Republican dollars likely will pour into the Butler-or-Bouchard campaign as well.

The outcome could help decide which party controls the senate for the last two years of President Bush's term, and thus influences the direction of the country.

IN ADDITION, Michigan voters will elect all 110 Michigan state representatives and 38 state senators this year. These candidates spend money, too.

Both parties create their own fund raising machines within legislative party caucuses to help their candidates, and dollars raised by both parties are dramatically higher than four years ago -- by 90 percent in most cases.

According to the AP reporter Hoffman's article, one respected

Lansing consultant expects spending in "a few state house contests to top $200,000, while some state senate contests could cost 10 times that."

Those totals are even scarier than the governor's race dollars.

Just imagine: Two million dollars in a single race for the state senate? $200,000 in a single house race?

It is amazing and sad that elective politics costs so much money. What's even more amazing and just as sad is that individuals and interests are willing to invest such amounts to determine who is elected to public office.

THE SPIRALING COST of politics prompts many questions

Where does all the money come from? And more important, why?

What are the motivations of the givers, and what do they expect in return for their money? What strings are attached to such extensive and intensive fund raising? How do the takers react once in office?

Are we selling our government to the highest bidder? If so, how do we get away from it?

Is an effective system of representative government -- that is, government of the people, by the people, for the people -- in danger? If so, can it be rescued, and how?

We as a people better take an intensive, clear look at these problems before it's too late.

FATHERS DAY -- Sunday, June 18, is Fathers Day.

Here's a suggestion: Give your father a hug and a kiss, if you're lucky enough to have him around.

EDITOR

You should have taught them better

To the editor,

I agree with Eileen Adams (June 8 letter to the editor) that enough is enough. However, I believe it is her attitude that is enough.

She states that she learned her lesson growing up when the police pulled her over, gave her a long talk, and let her go. She also states she will enforce discipline on her children (kids) if they need it. If she learned her lesson as she states, back then, why does she now have four points on her license, and still being pulled over for the same offense? If her children are doing things that warrant being watched, perhaps she should do a little more watching them herself. I know for a fact the officers of the Crawford County's Sheriff's Dept. do not issue tickets to those who don't break the law. They wouldn't be able to enforce them in the courtroom.

I am a paramedic firefighter. I invite Eileen Adams to go out on the highway when one of these children roll their car, is critically injured, may even die. Spend a few nights remembering the fear on that child's face, in their eyes, as I have. Spend a few nights remembering how hard the police officer on the scene, prior to the arrival of the ambulance, worked to keep a child alive. Spend a few sleepless nights remembering the children I have held in my hands while life left their bodies. Look in the face of a parent when they are told that their child is dead because of a needless accident. Speed is often a contributing factor. You have no idea!

Ms. Adams, you are mad because your child got caught breaking the law. You should have taught them better, rather than yell at the police for having to do your job. Grow up! Sometimes our children need tough love to enforce what they already know. You're teaching your children that mom will defend them when they are caught with their hand in the cookie jar, instead of nurturing them and letting them learn their lesson.

She stated that our children are dumb. My children are smart enough to know when they are doing something wrong. They are also smart enough to know a punishment will follow. Are your children not as smart?

I applaud the Crawford County Sheriff's Department, and every officer within that department, for caring enough to attempt to make our community a safer community.

God Bless them all!

Kathy Pardo Mobarak
Beaver Creek Township

They are doing their job

To the editor:

In response to the "Don't pick on our kids" letter, Ms. Adams accuses our sheriff's department of "picking on our kids." She accuses them of using their position in the community to harass kids. You couldn't be more off base.

Do you have any idea how much the Crawford County Sheriff's Department does for the kids in our community? Aside from working in the schools, these officers also teach D.A.R.E. to our children in more than one grade, hunter's safety, boater's safety, and snowmobile safety. These programs help our children to do the right and safe thing in many different situations. They hold an annual bike rodeo where the children of the community can register their bikes in case they get stolen. These officers also sell Christmas trees each year to raise money for their kids programs. Many do not know that yearly, many local children are picked up from school, taken shopping (which doesn't cost the child or family a penny), taken to lunch and delivered back home. This sheriff's department that you accuse of picking on kids, allows several children each year to shop for their families, something they might not otherwise be able to do. This department also gives out a scholarship for a graduate that is pursuing a career in Criminal Justice. I am only scratching the surface of what this department does for the children and people in our community.

You mentioned that when you first got your license and got pulled over for speeding, you were given a long talk and a warning. You also mentioned that you now have four points on your license... what did the warning teach you? I am sure that many officers here have given kids warning. I would also imagine that the determination of giving a ticket might also have something to do with the situation, the potential for harm, or maybe even the attitude of the person getting pulled over.

You asked if it was the money or politics...no, they are doing their job. You are right, their job is to protect and serve, even if that means upsetting a few people to promote safer roadways for everyone, including your children to travel on.

No one likes to get tickets, but if you are speeding, running a stop sign, etc, who is to blame... you or the officer? Working in the public eye is never an easy position to be in. Rather than faulting them for doing their job, maybe you should support the things that they are trying to teach!

MDOT reminds public about permits

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) reminds the public that most activities within the state right-of-way require a permit.

"The safety of both the motorist and the crews working within the right-of-way is a top priority for MDOT," said Bill Shreck, Director of Communications. "Permit applicants are given MDOT guidelines to follow when erecting signs and barricades in preparation for construction, utility or other work-zone types in the right-of-way."

One exception to the permit rule is the installation of a mailbox along a state trunkline. This activity does not require a permit, however, the mailbox must meet the Postmaster General's criteria.

If a driveway will access a state trunkline, (M, U.S. or I route) a driveway permit will be required. All upgrades to existing drives also will require a permit. Tree trimming and removal, drainage, landscaping, grading, utilities and other similar activities also require a permit.

For obtaining further information or a permit application, contact the following officials/departments: Emmet, Cheboygan, Otsego, Roscommon, Crawford and Ogemaw counties: Don Hadd at 989-344-1802 or 888-811-6368.

Duet to perform at CRAF Center

Ray Kamalay and Joel Mabus will be performing at the Gazebo on the CRAF Center lawn in Roscommon on June 21, at 7 p.m. Kamalay and Mabus bring hot-pickin', funny original songs and upper peninsular humor.

This duo is a music lovers delight with a wonderful match of vocal instruments. Kamalay started playing Detroit coffee-houses in the 1960's. His exposure there expanded his repertoire to include ragtime, blues, jazz, Celtic, Brazilian, Bach as well as original music.

Mabus comes from a family of musicians. His parents were professionals on the WLS Barn Dance show. He cut his teeth on bluegrass, jazz, swing and Celtic and won scholarships to Michigan State University. It was at this point Kamalay and Mabus met and have been dueting for over 25 years.

Although Kamalay was city and Mabus was country, they had much in common. (Joel is a brilliant singer-songwriter with multiple albums to his credit. Ray fronts one of the hottest jazz bands in the Midwest, Kamalay and the Red Hot Peppers.) Their musical fates have differed but they still come together to share an expansive musical camaraderie.

This concert is free to the public and is supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs, Gannon Broadcasting Systems, The Brook Retirement Community and the Roscommon Metropolitan Recreation Authority.

The Bible Speaks

Moralists Are Judged By The Gospel

Moralists are judged by God according to Romans 2 by self, v. 1; by truth, v. 2; by justice, v. 3; for ingratitude, v. 4; for impotence, v. 5; for their deeds, v. 6-8; without respect of persons, v. 9-11; by the light they possess, v. 12,13; by their inward conscience, v. 14,15; and by the gospel, v. 16. "16In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to my gospel." Paul stated the gospel clearly in Romans 1:16-18: "16For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. 17For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, The just shall live by faith. 18For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness." The gospel of Jesus Christ brings God's love to those who believe in Jesus Christ as their Savior, and God's wrath upon those who reject the gospel of Jesus Christ.

There is coming a place and time for judgment when every person who has rejected the gospel of Jesus Christ will be judged by that gospel. "16In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men..." As Jesus commanded His disciples in Mark 16:15,16: "15And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. 16He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." The same gospel which saves believers, also damns unbelievers. "14For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil." (Ecc 12:14).

There is a coming person of judgment when our Lord Jesus Christ returns to earth. "22For the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son: 23That all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son honoureth not the Father which hath sent him." (John 5:22,23). Those who have trusted Him will have eternal life. "24Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life." (John 5:24). Those who have rejected Him will be resurrected unto eternal damnation. (John 5:29). "31Because he hath appointed a day, in which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead." (Acts 17:31).

The coming precepts of judgment will be the gospel of Jesus Christ. As Christ promised in John 12:48: "48He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." This is why God has commanded us to make the Holy Scriptures known to all nations in Romans 16:26, "...for the obedience of faith." We preach not only Jesus Christ as Savior for believers, but also as judge for unbelievers. "22And of some have compassion, making a difference: 23And others save with fear, pulling them out of the fire; hating even the garment spotted by the flesh." (Jude 1:22,23). Are you under God's love or God's wrath? Pastor "B" will wear the goggles during the flights. The organization hopes to purchase another pair in the future. Nelson said goggles require the pilot to swivel his head to maintain the full sweep of vision but are excellent safety devices.

Paramedic Scott Allman said the goggles required filters to be put on lights within the helicopter cockpit to allow lighting on the patient during flight. Previously, small-directed white lights produced glare off the cockpit windshield and could only be used as needed.

"We can turn on all the lights now and it's not affecting the pilot's vision," Allman said. The goggles, which resemble small binoculars, are mounted on the flight crews' helmets and easily flip up and down for use or storage.

"We're the only program in Michigan that has them," Allman said.

The North Flight A-Star 350B2 helicopter can take its pilot, a nurse, and a paramedic from its base in Traverse City to a patient on Mackinac Island in 35 minutes. Normal cruising speed is 135 mph with an altitude between 1,000 and 3,000 feet. Four full-time pilots and medical crews operate on a 24-hour, seven-day per week basis. A back-up crew is always on call. Helicopter service covers the northern Lower Peninsula and eastern Upper Peninsula.

North Flight Air Division offices are located at Cherry Capital Airport. Smith said North Flight also operates a King Air B200 twin-engine airplane that can deliver adult and pediatric patients anywhere in the continental United States. On a recent day, a crew flew to Pittsburgh. Other days may involve a mission to Florida.

The advantage of the twin-engine fixed wing airplane is that it can fly above the weather that grounds all helicopters in Michigan, Smith said. Helicopter operations involve only emergency patients, while the fixed-wing flights can carry patients in emergency or non-emergency transfer situations.

"We go to the Mayo Clinic once or twice a week," she said. "We have the advantage on the airplane that we can take a family member along free of charge. That's especially helpful with pediatric patients."

Medical crews stand ready for work in either the helicopter or airplane. Flight Paramedic Brendan Keenan, who began his career on the ground, enjoys the challenges each day may bring. "You are using a wider range of skills more frequently, more critical care skills," he said.

Since June 1986 when North

Flight began operations with a helicopter and then a year later added an airplane, northern Michigan has continued to grow as a tourist mecca. Winter brings snowmobilers and extreme sports enthusiasts, while the summer boasts water recreation, off-road vehicles and heavier traffic conditions. Air medical transports, advanced technology, and advanced emergency medical techniques mean more patients involved in mishaps are being saved.

"You can have a pediatric patient, turn around and have a heart patient, turn around and have a priority one trauma patient all in the same shift," Keenan said.

Since its inception, North Flight EMS Air has been recertified four times by the Commission on Accreditation of Medical Transport Services (CAMTS) — the only national program for emergency services.

To join a flight crew, nurses and paramedics must have at least three years of experience in a critical care unit or with a ground ambulance service. A monthly training program keeps crew medical skills sharp. Each crewmember maintains certification in Advance Cardiac Life Support, Basic Trauma Life Support, Neonatal Resuscitation and Pediatric Advance Life Support.

Smith has spent 19 years with the air division — beginning as a flight nurse. "I like emergency medicine. Flying is an extension of the Emergency Department," she said.

Medical crews follow specific protocols when treating patients and remain in contact with hospital personnel as they travel. Curt Mikulski, M.D., serves as the medical director for the unit. "Once a month we have peer review and we go over flights," Smith said. "There is also clinical time spent at the hospital."

Medical crews help the pilot with observations during take-offs and landings and have special training on air operations. Many aircrew members enjoy challenging outdoor pursuits when not on the job, Keenan said. Chief Flight Medic John Mull serves on the Champ Car World Series safety team at racing events around the world.

Keenan said his job creates lots of opportunities that bring not only challenges, but satisfaction.

"You have to be driven, you have to be a problem solver. You can't call Cardiology and have them come up," he said, adding, "We have the coolest job at the hospital."

Museum to host music in city park

by Matt Seager
Staff Writer

It's official: history rocks. Especially the history of Crawford County. Not convinced? Volunteers from the Crawford County Historical Museum will be out to prove their point on June 24 from noon to 6 p.m. at the Grayling City Park, along with a host of talented local bands.

The fund raising event, called "History Rocks 2006," is a free music festival designed to generate recognition and donations for the Crawford County Historical Museum. A $5 donation is suggested, but not required.

"We thought it would have more broad appeal than other kinds of fund raisers we can have," said museum volunteer Ken Sands.

History Rocks 2006 will be headlined by local act Mr. Hand, whose broad selection of classic rock covers have proven to be a popular act at various gigs in Grayling and the surrounding area.

"We're hoping to get more young attention," said Ken's brother Wayne Sands, who is also volunteering for the event.

Other performers will include everything from local punk bands to acoustic Christian music.

"We're also looking to bring some folk musicians up from Traverse City," said Wayne. "It runs the gamut of guitar oriented music."

Aspiring local bands who are looking to get their name into the public eye also have something to gain from the event. As of press time, not all slots for History Rocks 2006 have been filled, so performers are still welcome to sign up to play.

"It's good exposure for the bands," said Wayne. All genres of music are welcome, as long as the lyrics are appropriate for all ages.

A sound system will be in place for the event, but bands are required to bring all their own gear, including amps.

"If we can get people to know the museum is here and stop by because of the concert, that's great," said Ken. "As far as I'm concerned, the publicity is just as important as any money we raise."

Nevertheless, according to the museum's new curator, Priscilla Geyer, funds are desperately needed.

"We hardly have the money to keep the museum open," said Geyer. "We really need the money for the preservation, restoration and repair of the buildings themselves...also, there are a lot of pictures in the depot that need to be reframed."

To sign up to perform, leave a message with Ken at 989-348-8584.

Federal Government allocates $102,116 to Grayling housing

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is allocating over $4 million to public housing agencies throughout Michigan's 1st Congressional District. Of these funds, $102,116 will be allocated to the Grayling Housing Commission in Crawford County.

Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) announced the funding and said it comes as part of HUD's Capital Fund grants for fiscal year 2006.

"Public housing is vital for some of our most vulnerable citizens," said Stupak. "This funding will allow public housing agencies throughout Northern Michigan to maintain and upgrade their facilities."

Dixie Anderson, executive director of the Schoolcraft County Housing Commission, underscored the importance of Capital Funds to public housing authorities.

"HUD's Capital Funds are used from everything from improving the aesthetics of the living environment, to making units energy efficient, to upgrading security in buildings," Anderson said. "The majority of our residents are either elderly or disabled and would suffer greatly without the existence of safe and high quality affordable housing."

Court funding decision dictates building plans

affirmed Kolenda's ruling. Crawford and Kalkaska Counties disputed the benefits because officials said it would place unfunded liability on the counties.

A final ruling for the legal squabble is expected prior to July 31, when the current term for the Michigan Supreme Court ends, said Supreme Court spokesperson Marcia McBrien.

The Supreme Court's decision is expected to come with a ruling on attorney fees charged to both sides in the case, which have reached over $2 million. The county may be liable for its own attorney fees and the attorney fees charged by the court's lawyers.

County Commissioner Mike Lange, who has been critical of the county's expenses incurred to fight the court battle, suggested scaling back the planned building expansion to just addressing handicapped accessibility issues.

"ADA compliance is ever so important to get done, regardless of how this court case turns out, and for us to keep talking about it doesn't show much action," Lange said.

County officials said they could consider a 20-year bond or going for a county wide millage if the county is faced with paying steep legal bills.

Kirtland Community College receives lift truck to complement automotive technology studies

Kirtland Community College recently received the donation of a new Toyota lift truck for use in its Automotive Technology department. The 10,000-pound capacity, internal combustion lift truck was given to the college by Toyota Material Handling, U.S.A., Inc. (TMHU).

"Our automotive technology department is thrilled with this donation," said Richard Bonk, automotive technology instructor of Kirtland. "The lift truck provides students with another engineering path to explore beyond traditional automotive studies."

The Kirtland Automotive Technology department is nationally certified by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE)/National Automotive Technicians Education Foundation (NATEF) in all eight major areas of training.

Automotive technicians receive training in automotive technology, chassis, electrical systems, powertrain and more.

"This Toyota lift truck is especially important to our program because we receive many calls from lift truck service and repair companies looking for qualified technicians," continued Bonk. "Thanks in part to Rick Kidder, a Kirtland alumnus and Toyota representative, who helped orchestrate the donation, we will be able to provide the hands-on experience necessary to better prepare our students for careers in the material handling industry.

Toyota Material Handling, U.S.A., Inc. (TMHU), the number one selling lift truck supplier in the U.S. since 2002, is headquartered in Irvine, Calif., and offers a full line of high-quality lift trucks sold under the Toyota brand.

Kirtland Community College students now have another piece of equipment on which to build their skills with the donation of this Toyota lift truck to Kirtland's Automotive Technology department. Instructor Richard "Smoke" Bonk is gladly getting used to maneuvering the 10,000-pound capacity, internal combustion lift truck which was donated to the college by Toyota Material Handling, U.S.A., Inc.

Smock is first recipient of Tanger/Kirtland business scholarship

Kirtland Community College and the Tanger Outlet Center in West Branch announce that Matthew Smock, of Grayling, has been chosen to receive the first Stanley K. Tanger Kirtland Community College Business/Marketing Scholarship.

Tanger came up with the outlet shopping center concept more than 25 years ago and now runs more than 30 locations across the country. The scholarship bearing his name is intended to go to college students enrolling full-time at Kirtland who plan to pursue business or marketing degrees.

Smock has already applied the $500 award to the 12 credits of summer classes he is enrolled in at Kirtland in his eager bid to get college behind him.

"I'm determined to get college over and done with, doing as much as I can as quickly as I can," Smock said, explaining that he graduated from high school in December — six months early — and already has two years of college courses under his belt.

The energetic 17-year-old said he is taking his cue from his father who recently completed a college program after it became apparent he needed a new set of job skills if he was to survive in the shifting Michigan job scene.

His father's advice to begin college as soon as possible led Smock to begin taking classes at Kirtland as a dual-enrolled student during his junior and senior years at Grayling High School.

Presenting the first Stanley K. Tanger Kirtland Community College Business/Marketing Scholarship to its recipient, Matthew Smock (center), are (L-R) Kirtland business instructor Judith Grenkowicz; Vicki Seltz Barnes, general manager of the Tanger Outlet Center in West Branch; Kirtland's Director of Financial Aid Christin Horndt; and Associate Dean of Instruction Karen Brown.

Smock's plan is to take advantage of Kirtland's "3+1" partnership with Northwood University in Midland in which a student can take his or her first three years of courses at Kirtland, then transfer to Northwood for the fourth year, earning a bachelor's degree in business administration.

"Then I plan to go to the University of Michigan for two years for my master's in business statistics," Smock said, noting that he'd like to combine his love for both mathematics and creativity in his eventual career in business.

"He has a very mature outlook for someone his age," said Vicki Seltz Barnes, general manager of the Tanger Outlet Center in West Branch, noting that her company is thrilled about the choice of scholarship winner.

"Matthew has already exhibited great initiative by working in his family business while being dual-enrolled in order to graduate early and get a jump start on his college education," Barnes said. "All of this happening while he has been involved in various community related events. Matthew has great potential for continued success and we are glad to be able to assist him in that process with this scholarship."

NCMCF Crawford Youth Advisory Council awards over $2,600 to youth programs

The North Central Michigan Community Foundation (NCMCF) Crawford County Youth Advisory Council (YAC), as part of its effort to improve the communities it serves, has awarded $2,617.72 through three different grants that serve youth under the age of 18 in Crawford County.

The following organizations were supported for their youth projects with funds from the Crawford County Kellogg Youth Fund through NCMCF.

$1,200 to Grayling Little League to support the purchase of a swing and slide playground. The grant will provide the majority of funding for the construction material for the new project, which will replace the much older, damaged playground.

$1,000 to the City of Grayling

Parks and Recreation Committee to support repairs to the asphalt around the perimeter of the ice rink at the Grayling City Skate Park.

$417.72 to Grayling High School to support the purchase of digital video imagery equipment for the GHS science department. Specifically, the grant dollars will be used to purchase a wireless data projector and a multi-media video flex camera.

The NCMCF Youth Advisory Council is a group of students from Crawford, Ogemaw, and Oscoda counties working with adult advisors to improve the lives of other children in their communities through the allocation of grant money. Through this program, students learn the power of philanthropy, and it empowers them to make a real difference. The students act as a grant screening committee to award grants from the Crawford, Ogemaw, and Oscoda County Kellogg Youth Funds.

The North Central Michigan Community Foundation (NCMCF), established in 1998, has awarded more than $627,000 with 703 grants and scholarships in its efforts to improve the quality of life for current and future residents of Crawford, Ogemaw, and Oscoda counties. NCMCF is a group of permanent charitable endowment funds supported by various donors who care about the future of the communities of Crawford, Ogemaw, and Oscoda to enhance and protect the quality of life for its residents. NCMCF is an affiliate of the Community Foundation for Northeast Michigan.

Dental program for youth expanded

State Representatives Matt Gillard (D-Alpena) and Gary McDowell last week announced the expansion of the Health Kids Dental program in Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula.

"Our children's health is essential to their well-being, and this program helps ensure that our kids will have healthy teeth and beautiful smiles to last their whole lives," Gillard said. "I applaud Delta Dental for expanding this program to serve more children in Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula. This is a change in the right direction for Michigan's children."

Beginning this month, the Michigan Department of Community Health is expanding its Healthy Kids Dental contract with Delta Dental of Michigan. Delta Dental administers the program that provides dental care for children who do not have coverage. The program is expanding to 22 counties, including Alcona, Alpena, Crawford, Montmorency, Oscoda, Presque Isle and Mackinac counties. Medicaid beneficiaries younger than 21 residing in these counties will be automatically enrolled in the program.

"Dental problems can keep children from learning in the classroom and it can hurt a child's ability to thrive," McDowell said. "Proper oral hygiene prevents painful ailments such as gum disease, tooth decay, cavities and gingivitis. Good dental health habits developed during childhood last a lifetime, that's why this is an important program for children in Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula."

Frederic Head Start accredited by NAEYC

Frederic Head Start has earned accreditation from the National Association for the Education of Young Children—the nation's leading organization of early childhood professionals.

"We're proud to be accredited by NAEYC, and recognized for our commitment to reaching the highest professional standards," said Sherry Garner, area manager, NEMCSA Head Start. "NAEYC Accreditation lets families in our community know that children in our program are getting the best care and early learning experiences." Head Start is a free, comprehensive preschool program for qualifying families and with children three to five years of age. NEMCSA Head Start's mission is to provide high quality, supportive learning experiences for children and families to promote their future success. NEMCSA Head Start serves 21 counties in Michigan to include programs in the Grayling and Mio areas.

More than 11,000 early childhood programs, serving over one million young children are currently accredited by NAEYC. "In recent years, we've seen a growing number of child care and preschool programs earning NAEYC Accreditation," said Mark Ginsberg, Ph.D., executive director of NAEYC. "By earning accreditation, Frederic Head Start has become a leader in a national effort to raise the quality of early childhood education, and to help give all children a better start."

Responding to growth of the system, in 1999 the NAEYC Governing Board appointed a National Commission on Accreditation Reinvention to conduct a comprehensive review of NAEYC's Accreditation system. Building on their work, NAEYC is making many changes to increase the reliability and accountability of the accreditation system and promote higher program quality. In April 2005, the NAEYC Governing Board approved Early Childhood Program Standards and Accreditation Criteria, which will be used in the future to assess whether programs receive accreditation.

NAEYC created its accreditation program in 1985 to set professional standards for early childhood education, and to help families identify high-quality childcare and early education programs.

To earn NAEYC accreditation, a program conducts a self-study to determine how well it meets the standards. After necessary improvements are made, the program is observed by independent, professional validators, and then reviewed by a national panel. Programs are accredited by NAEYC for a five year period.

Heart specialty services expanded in Gaylord

Roberto Corpus, M.D., offers new peripheral vascular clinic monthly

A simple test that helps diagnose a heart condition that often goes unrecognized is now available to Gaylord area residents through one of the specialty clinics held at Otsego Memorial Hospital.

Roberto A. Corpus, M.D., F.A.C.C., is traveling to Gaylord to see patients locally. Corpus is an interventional cardiologist with Great Lakes Cardiology, PC, in Traverse City. He has established a peripheral vascular clinic at the Diagnostic and Specialty Clinic in Gaylord. Corpus offers an easy, painless test to help diagnose peripheral arterial disease (PAD), a common condition that affects the blood vessels outside the heart.

"This condition affects more than 10 million Americans and the vast majority of these patients are undiagnosed," Corpus said.

"Patients with PAD have a three-fold higher risk of death and a four-to-six times higher risk of heart attack or stroke than patients who do not have PAD."

PAD can be diagnosed with a careful history and physical exam, as well as a special test that measures blood pressures in both arms and both ankles. A significant drop in blood pressure between the arm and ankle indicates that arterial blockage may exist somewhere in between.

"This test is completely non-invasive and takes about 10 minutes to perform," Corpus said. "Although guidelines for this type of screening have not been established, it is clear that there are high-risk patients, such as smokers, diabetics, and patients over 70, who may benefit from earlier disease detection and therapy."

If the history, physical exam and test suggest PAD, more complex imaging tests can be performed to pinpoint the problem.

"This is an excellent screening tool that helps us identify

Mercy Grayling appoints surgical services director

Wendy Pillon joins the hospital after extensive experience in Port Huron Mercy Hospital Grayling recently appointed a new Surgical Services director.

Wendy Pillon joined the hospital May 1 after serving many years at Port Huron Hospital, most recently as manager of Central Sterile Services.

"I like the fact that this is a small hospital. The intimate atmosphere here is very nice, especially as it relates to patient care," she said. As the director of Surgical Services, Pillon is responsible for overseeing the surgical department, ambulatory care, preadmission testing, central processing, and endoscopy services.

Pillon's first month on the job has been spent getting acquainted with department operations and hospital staff. She hopes to build on the strengths of the Surgical Services team. "You always look for opportunities to take your hospital or department into the future of health care."

A lifelong resident of Port Huron, Pillon looks forward to enjoying her hobbies of fly fishing, kayaking, hiking, hunting and cycling in the Grayling area. She and her husband, David, have five children and two grandchildren.

In addition to her new job, Pillon is continuing her educa-

"We welcome Wendy to the Mercy Grayling family," said Stephanie Riemer-Matuzak, CEO of Mercy Hospital Grayling. "She brings us her solid background and a desire to enhance our patients' surgical experiences."

Michigan communities can earn an award for creating active environments

Michigan Communities that are working to become healthier places may be eligible to get a statewide award for their efforts. The Promoting Active Communities Award will be given this fall to communities who complete the Michigan's Promoting Active Communities (PAC) online self-assessment. The PAC assessment and award are unique in the country. Besides opening the door for public recognition, the award application process increases awareness about the what it takes to make it easy for people to be physically active - including public policies, zoning, neighborhood environments, and programs.

Awareness of what it takes to create an active living community has made a big difference in many of the 70+ communities that completed the award over the first five years of its existence. According to Denise Siegel, Recreation Manager for the City of Kalamazoo Department of Parks and Recreation, "Kalamazoo recognizes the need for a healthy environment, and by utilizing the Promoting Active Community self-assessment tool we can plan for our community and provide healthy alternatives for all citizens."

This year, the PAC is "new and improved." It has been evaluated and revised as a result of a multi-year, grant-funded project. The grant team includes the Michigan Department of Community Health; Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports; Prevention Research Center of Michigan; and Michigan State University. A PAC steering committee of more than 15 state leaders took part in the revision process. "Some of the best minds in the state made sure that the new PAC would be truly helpful to communities that want to be healthier places to live," said the project leader, Dr. Katherine Alaimo, Assistant Professor in the Department of Food Science and Human Nutrition, Michigan State University.

In addition to improvements to the PAC, a new companion guide has been developed to accompany the PAC Award. Created to help Michigan residents envision and create safe, walkable, bikeable communities, Design Guidelines for Active Michigan Communities is now available for downloading on the PAC website (www.mihealthtools.org/communities).

All improvements were made possible by a grant from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. The improvements were based on an extensive literature review of current research related to physical activity and community design; focus groups with previous PAC participants; a review of other community design evaluation tools, and input from state and national experts. "Improvements in the PAC award application process reflect the best scientific research available on how to promote physical activity in communities," said Rochelle Hurst, manager of the Cardiovascular Health, Nutrition and Physical Activity Section at the Michigan Department of Community Health. "We encourage all Michigan communities that want to prevent heart disease and strokes among their residents to complete the PAC assessment."

Communities who complete the assessment and earn enough points receive one of five levels of an award at the Designing Healthy, Liveable Communities Conference on November 13. The deadline to submit completed assessments for award consideration is August 25. Award levels include:

Copper: Communities have made a commitment to becoming a healthier place to live and have begun to take steps toward removing barriers to physical activity.

Bronze: Communities have taken significant steps toward making it easy for people to be active.

Silver: Communities have achieved significant progress toward making it easy for people to be active.

Gold: Communities can document outstanding achievements in making it easy for people to be active.

Platinum: Communities are models of commitment to healthy, active living.

Communities can learn more or register to complete the self-assessment (and be eligible for an award) at www.mihealthtools.org/communities.

HONORS

Kirtland Community College is pleased to announce that Tina Everitt, of Whittemore, is the recipient of this year's Otto and Martha Krauss Honors Scholarship which is awarded annually to a Kirtland Community College honors student.

The $4,000 scholarship - $1,000 per semester for up to four semesters - will help her finish the licensed practical nursing program she is currently in at Kirtland, and proceed into the registered nursing program this fall.

Everitt, 29, said she knew when she was very young that she wanted to go into the field of nursing, but that it was the care she received during two difficult pregnancies that convinced her it was the right choice.

"It would be very fulfilling to help people the way that the nurses helped me when I was pregnant," Everitt said in her scholarship application essay. "Without doctors and nurses, neither of my children would be alive today."

A full-time student, Everitt maintains a 3.9 grade-point average at Kirtland and is a member of the Kirtland Honors Program, as well Phi Theta Kappa, the international honor society for two-year colleges.

The Otto and Martha Krauss Scholarship was established in 1996 and is a competitive scholarship, awarded annually to provide recognition and financial support to outstanding students enrolled in Kirtland's Honors Program.

IRS reminds Michigan charities to avoid campaign activities

With an upcoming election season going into full swing in Michigan, the Internal Revenue Service reminds charities to avoid becoming involved in political campaign activities.

In the 2004 elections, the IRS noticed an uptick in politicking on the part of 501(c)(3) organizations. The agency responded by increasing its educational efforts and launching an enforcement program, the Political Activity Compliance Initiative (PACI), to investigate specific, credible allegations of wrongdoing.

"While the vast majority of charities and churches do not engage in politicking, an increasing number did take part in prohibited activities in the 2004 election cycle," IRS Commissioner Mark W. Everson said. "The rule against political campaign intervention by charities and churches is long established. We are stepping up our efforts to enforce it."

The IRS has put procedures into place for the 2006 election season to more quickly address instances of potential prohibited activity on the part of charities, churches and other tax-exempt organizations. The procedures are meant to ensure that public referrals as well as activities the IRS itself uncovers are reviewed expeditiously and treated in a consistent, fair and nonpartisan manner.

As a rule, charities, religious organizations such as churches, educational organizations and other groups that are tax-exempt under section 501(c)(3) of the tax code may not participate or intervene in any political campaign on behalf of or in opposition to any candidate for public office.

This prohibition means 501(c)(3) organizations may not endorse candidates, distribute statements for or against candidates, raise funds for or donate to candidates or become involved in any activity that would be either supportive or opposed to any candidate.

Whether an organization is engaging in prohibited political campaign activity depends upon all the facts and circumstances in each case. For example, organizations may sponsor debates or forums to educate voters. But if the debate or forum shows a preference for or against a certain candidate, it becomes a prohibited activity.

Federal courts have ruled that it is not unconstitutional for the tax law to impose conditions, such as the political campaign prohibition, upon exemption from federal income tax. This position was most recently upheld in Branch Ministries v. Rossotti, 211 F.3d 137 (D.C. Cir. 2000).

Several Web-based resources are available that discuss in more detail the issues outlined above. For more information, see:

Kirtland tapped to receive four-year, $800,000 grant to retrain workers

There's good news for Northern Michigan residents who are out of work because their employers closed their doors. A major state appropriation was recently signed by Gov. Jennifer Granholm that grants $800,000 each to Kirtland Community College and Montcalm Community College, to provide retraining for those out of work due to permanent facility closures.

The need for such funds was recognized after the closing of a Georgia-Pacific plant in Otsego County that left 210 out of work, and similar plant closings in Montcalm County. State Senator Tony Stamas (R-Midland), and state Representatives Kevin Elsenheimer (R-Bellaire) and Judy Emmons (R-Sheridan), decided to seek special funding for the two colleges, which are well-situated to serve affected workers.

The provost of Kirtland's Michigan Technical Education Center in Gaylord, Dr. Doty Latuszek, worked closely with the offices of these legislators to be sure the language of the appropriation bill emerged with sufficient flexibility for effective use of the money.

"We are saddened by the loss of jobs and the impact of the Georgia-Pacific plant closure on the former employees and their families," Latuszek said. "We will work closely with the appropriate state personnel and agencies to facilitate and provide retraining for re-employment."

The legislation, signed by the governor Friday, May 26, allows the appropriation to be used for costs including tuition reimbursements, equipment, supplies, textbooks, staff and programming costs associated with retraining workers during the next four years.

Those eligible must have lost their jobs with a private firm due to permanent facility closure within Kirtland's local service area. This includes not only the nine counties that are either all or partially included in Kirtland's tax district, but an additional eight contiguous counties. In all, they are Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Arenac, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Clare, Crawford, Gladwin, Iosco, Kalkaska, Missaukee, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Otsego and Roscommon.

"We are very happy to be selected to provide retraining opportunities for workers from throughout our region," said Kirtland President Dr. Charles Rorie. "It is a responsibility we take very seriously."

The college must now prepare and submit to the state a detailed spending plan for the funds. Upon approval of that plan, the college will advertise the timelines and details of opportunities and qualifications for prospective students wishing to take advantage of these new funds and provide access information for those students.

Placement of real estate signs enforced by MDOT

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) reminds real estate companies and property owners to observe the proper placement of signs advertising the sale or lease of real property along state trunklines.

"While we acknowledge the significance of these signs as they relate to the real estate industry and individuals buying or selling property, we also are keenly aware of the need to keep the right-of-way clear for the safety of Michigan motorists and pedestrians," said Andy Holmes, North Region associate region engineer for operations.

These signs are required to be more than 30 feet from the edge of the roadway (white line) for highways that do not have barrier curbs. For highways with barrier curbs, the signs must be more than three feet from the back of the curb. Also, signs are not permitted within clear vision areas at intersections or commercial driveways, so that they do not interfere with the sight distance of a driver. Directional signs are prohibited adjacent to state highways. No signs may be placed along freeways or ramps, within the limits of freeway interchanges, or along other roadways with limited or controlled access restrictions.

Improperly placed signs will be removed by MDOT. These signs will be held for seven days at the local MDOT office or maintenance garage, after which time they will be discarded.

These requirements also are formally communicated to local real estate companies each year as a courtesy.

Obsolete dams threaten fish habitat, water quality

by Erica Richards
Capitol News Service

Obsolete dams are creating problems on Michigan rivers, and some environmental experts are calling for their removal or repair.

Dams that are no longer in use can create a variety of negative environmental impacts, said Patrick Rusz, director of wildlife programs for the Michigan Wildlife Conservancy in Bath.

The biggest impact is an increase in water temperature, which can harm fish populations, he said.

Other problems include blocking the passage of fish, a reduction of dissolved oxygen in the water and lower water quality, he said.

Michigan has more than 2,500 dams, according to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The state's 103 hydroelectric facilities affect almost all of its major river systems.

Rusz said that not all old dams should be removed because some still serve a useful purpose. Instead, they can be repaired or modified.

"You might have a dam that blocks fish passage for critical species but it also blocks lamprey eels from coming up the stream," he said. "Sometimes complete dam removal is not that prudent." Lampreys are an eel-like invasive species that prey on other fish species and have had a detrimental impact on trout.

Rusz said the process of removing a dam often takes up to a year, since the water behind it cannot all be released at once. "The price of removal also varies depending on the size of the dam and other factors such as erosion or riverside development. The estimated price of future removal for one dam on the Hersey River near Reed City would be $300,000, while three dams on the Boardman River in Traverse City would cost $5 million, Rusz said.

Funding for those projects is being sought, he said.

Local governments and private owners often cannot afford to pay for removal, so the state should create a long-term fund and program for removing or repairing obsolete dams, he said.

"It isn't like one solution - just knock the darn things out," he said. "The bottom line is that we need to have a better and defined system."

Jessica Mistak, a DNR fisheries biologist in Marquette, said two dams in the area were removed in the past few years. One hydroelectric dam near Norway in Dickinson County was removed for $2 million while another on the Dead River in Marquette County cost $200,000.

Mistak said there have also been dam failures in the Upper Peninsula.

Joseph Leonardi, a DNR fisheries biologist from Lapeer, said there are two dams in need of modifications in his area, the Chesaning and Frankenmuth dams.

"We have so many dams that are in very tough shape and we're just realizing the benefits of fish passage and reconnecting the fragmented rivers," he said.

Other major dam removals in the past five years include the Big Rapids Dam on the Muskegon River in Mecosta County and the Stronach Dam on the Pine River in Manistee County.

Byron Lane, chief of dam safety for the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ), said state law requires that 1,048 dams, those that meet size criteria, must be inspected regularly.

Local governments or private owners who wish to remove a dam must also obtain a permit from DEQ.

Lane said funding for dam removal and repair often comes from private organizations in the form of grants.

He added that a bill was recently introduced in the U.S. Senate to provide grant assistance to states for repair of deficient dams.

"Dam removal is an up-and-coming movement around the country, and Michigan is no exception," he said.

Bumpy ride for road-defect suits saves state millions

by Eric Freedman
Capitol News Service

The state's payouts in highway-defect suits have plummeted in recent years, saving millions of tax dollars - but that doesn't mean Michigan roads are better built or better maintained.

Instead, the savings are due to a series of court decisions that limit government liability in road-defect related crashes, as a new Senate Fiscal Agency report highlights.

The difference is dramatic: In 2004-05, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) paid about $1.4 million to settle highway negligence claims. In 1999-2000, such cases cost the state $12.3 million.

Payouts last year ranged from a high of $600,000 in a Van Buren County case to a low of $9,750 in a Livingston County suit. In the Van Buren case, a passenger was seriously injured when a chunk of concrete broke loose from the pavement on Route 191 and smashed through the windshield.

The other eight successful claims came in cases from Wayne, Bay and Ogemaw counties. In the largest of them, the state paid $500,000 to two sisters who were severely injured when their car lost control on rough pavement at the Lodge's Bagley Street exit in Detroit, the attorney general's office said.

"Payments resulting from highway negligence litigation over recent years have been well below the amounts paid in the 1980s and 1990s," the report said. "The reduced level can be attributed in part to rulings by the Michigan Supreme Court regarding governmental immunity and the highway exception to governmental immunity."

Those decisions came in key cases from Macomb, Shiawassee and Mecosta counties.

Governmental immunity is the rule that protects state and federal governments from liability unless the Legislature or Congress specifically authorizes claims.

Settlements and judgments come from the state trunkline fund -- money that is otherwise spent for road construction and maintenance, said Bill Bowerman, the agency's chief analyst who wrote the report.

Patrick Isom, chief of the attorney general's Transportation Division, said, "The statute imposes a responsibility to keep a highway in reasonable repair, and applies it only to the improved portion of the highway designed for vehicular travel," Isom said. "It has to be a defect in the roadbed surface.

"At one time, it was broadly interpreted, and if a car went off the road and ran into a tree, someone could argue that the tree was planted too close to the road," he said.

No longer.

"Before, a person could claim 'you didn't have adequate signs,' 'you didn't warn me about this curve,' 'you didn't warn me about ice on the bridge,' or they said 'you didn't design the road well,'" Isom said.

Not only are payouts down, but so is the volume of cases filed against the state in the Court of Claims, reducing defense costs. Last year, 46 suits were filed, less than half the 100 started in 1999.

The court decisions apply to crashes on county roads as well, Assistant Attorney Gen. Vincent Leone said.

And that's led to fewer lawsuits against counties, said Thomas Brouwer, administrator of the Michigan County Road Commission Self-Insurance Pool.

"Our claims have decreased," Brouwer said. "We know the smaller claims we used to get are not filed now. The ones we get are the serious claims with serious injuries."

Overall, the state paid $12.6 million in court judgments and settlements in 2004-05, down from $18.3 million a year earlier and from $40.5 million in 1999-2000, the Senate Fiscal Agency reported. Overall, MDOT accounted for 24 percent of the total, from negligence, contract and employment claims.

Mercy Hospital Chief addresses Medicaid impact

State Rep. Matt Gillard, whose 106th Michigan House District includes Crawford County, recently visited Mercy Hospital Grayling to discuss Medicaid funding and related issues.

Gillard, D-Alpena, an appointee to Gov. Jennifer Granholm's Medicaid Long Term Care Task Force, said he was interested in understanding how Medicaid impacts health care facilities in his district.

Mercy Hospital Grayling CEO Stephanie Riemer-Matuzak, who

hosted state lawmakers for the visit, advised Gillard that adequate Medicaid appropriations by the state are essential to Mercy Hospital, as well as to the ability of its clinics to provide adequate care.

Offsite facilities include the hospital's primary care clinics located in Grayling, Prudenville and Roscommon, home care and other services.

"Typically, about 15 percent of the hospital's patients rely on Medicaid to underwrite all or a large portion of the cost of their care," Riemer-Matuzak said. "Additionally, about 65 percent of the residents at Mercy Manor, the onsite skilled nursing facility adjacent to the hospital, have their care underwritten by Medicaid. Most residents are senior citizens."

Medicaid is funded by state and federal appropriations. The state uses a funding methodology that permits increased federal funding of Medicaid in the state and which helps hospitals and other health care facilities to better serve their patients, including rural facilities such as Mercy Hospital Grayling with a relatively large number of Medicaid-eligible patients.

Gillard noted the importance of adequate state revenue to appropriately fund Medicaid. He advised that the state's revenue status would be known with the release of the Senate's formal estimate of expected revenue for the current and upcoming fiscal years.

GRAYLING LITTLE LEAGUE

More than 100 Grayling Little League players participated in the league's third annual Home Run Derby on Saturday, June 10, at Millikin Field.

The competition started with GLL/4-H T-ball players hitting balls off the tee, and measuring where the balls stopped on the field.

Other division players had the opportunity to hit five fair balls off the pitching machine with distance measured from the ball's first contact with the ground.

Guest divisions were also provided for little league coaches, moms, dads, alumni, and Vikings.

This year the field lights were spared although more than a dozen pitches were hit out of the park.

The league's Home Run Derby began in 2004 as a celebration of little league's 40th anniversary and caught on as an annual event because "it is enjoyable for the adults as much as the kids," league officials said.

This year's event was sponsored by AuSable Eye Care, RV

Doctor of Grayling, Scheer Motors, North Central Officials Association, and Gary Fox Builders.

Winners of the 2006 Home Run Derby, by division, were:

T-ball – 1st, Quincy Lech; 2nd, Rebecca Latusek; 3rd, Connor Brill;

Minor – 1st, Adam Brill; 2nd, Brandon Kowalski; 3rd, Jacqueline Bulmer;

Intermediate – 1st, Zack Mack; 2nd, Jeff Enos; 3rd, Tyler Longendyke;

Major – 1st, Travis Schreiber; 2nd, Steven Enos; 3rd, David Bergan;

Junior – 1st, Jensen Aubry; 2nd, Ethan Lewis; 3rd, Willy Ryan;

Softball Juniors – 1st, Makenna Harwood; 2nd, Teresa Schreiber;

Moms – 1st, Chris Sheldon;

Dads – 1st, John Schneider;

Alumni – 1st, Scott Longendyke;

Coaches – 1st, Max Prosser;

Vikings – 1st, Samantha Schreiber.

Jacqueline Bulmer bats during Saturday's Home Run Derby. Bulmer took 3rd place in her division.

Zack Mack, Tyler Longendyke, and Jeff Enos won the Intermediate Division.

Softball players Sarah Sheer, Kaylene Harris, Caitlin Prosser, and Cierra Prosser gather with Rich Schreiber, Little League President.

Jacqueline Bulmer, Brandon Kowalski, and Adam Brill were the winners in the Minor Division.

Rebecca Latusek, Quincy Lech, and Connor Brill won the GLL/4-H T-ball Division.

David Bergan, Travis Schreiber, and Steven Enos – pictured with Little League President Rich Schreiber – were the top three finishers in the Major Division.

Wrestling (winter) – The Vikings posted a 12-0 record in league matches and won a league championship in the Lake Michigan Conference. It was the LMC's first season with wrestling as a full league sport. Twelve of Grayling's 13 starters placed in the conference championship meet, including four first place finishers – Eric Gosciacki (119), Cody Malone (140), Jacob Reynolds (171), and Joey Ferrigan (215).

Golf (spring) – The girls golf team placed first out of 17 teams at regionals, capturing the squad's first ever regional championship.

Softball (spring) – The team set a new school record for most wins in a season in 2006. The Vikings posted a 5-4 victory vs. Gaylord in the district semifinals, but lost to Cadillac 5-4 in the district championship round.

Baseball (spring) – The Vikings posted a 6-5 extra-inning win over Gaylord in the district semifinals but lost to Ogemaw (10-4) in the tournament's championship game.

The Grayling Post 106 bowling team recently competed in the Michigan American Legion 70th Annual Bowling Tournament in Flushing and placed in all three events.

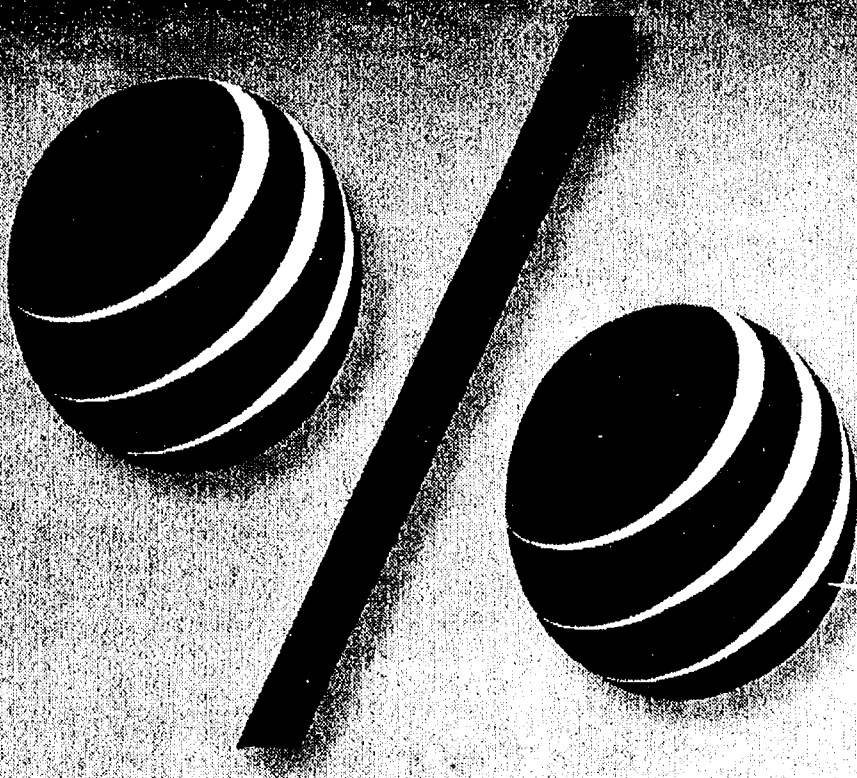

Grayling finished 13th out of 134 groups in the team event. The team, which was made up of Phil Faustman, Dennis Henning, Todd Kotrash, Charley Smith, and Jan Thayer, had a team score of 3,020. Newberry Post won the event with a score of 3,294.

In the doubles competition, Grayling's father-son duo of Jan Thayer and Jason Thayer placed 4th out of 345 teams, 15 pins behind the winning team from Post 101.

Jason scored a 650 in singles for 51st place out of 670 entries. Rick Osborne of Post 264 won the singles event with a 744. Jason, who had not bowled since he left for Iraq last year, bowled with no handicap.

Next year's tournament will be hosted by the Matt Urban American Legion Post 40 in Monroe during the month of April.

Soccer team ends year with awards banquet

■ Kim Long and Amanda Moran earn all-league honors in LMC

Grayling High School's varsity girls' soccer team recently wrapped up its 2006 season with an awards banquet.

Kim Long was named the team's Most Valuable Player, Ashlee Robinson was named Most Improved, and Jessica Bindschatel was the squad's Rookie of the Year.

Long, Vicki King, and Chelsea Currison – the squad's three seniors – were recognized for playing four years of varsity soccer.

Long earned a spot on the Lake Michigan Conference's first team and Amanda Moran earned an all-conference honorable mention.

"Our successes this year were measured in ways not shown on the scoreboard. These girls improved every week this season. I'm impressed with what they have learned individually and as a team. In our last game they played as good as they have all year. We were strong on defense, the midfield played aggressively and moved the ball to the forwards, who were able to provide some offensive threats. Everyone was healthy, mostly. And despite the loss, it was a great way to end the season."

Kim Long – Most Valuable Player

Coach John Haven said.

Johnston was also selected to play in the All-Star Game For Seniors.

Richie Schreiber was the team's Rookie of the Year.

"Richie is a sophomore and will be an outstanding player for us the next two seasons. He should be our number one pitcher next season," Coach Schneider said.

Mike Boylan and Jim Boylan earned academic all-district honors. Jim had a 3.8 grade point average and Mike had a 3.6 GPA.

"Mike and Jim will be very important parts of the team's success next season," Coach Schneider said.

"We played much better at the end of the season," Coach Schneider said. "In the district games we showed we were a better team than our record. We have a lot of varsity underclassmen that gained a lot of experience this season."

Some of the underclassmen will be playing on an American Legion summer team. The squad will play home games vs. Traverse City Central on July 13 and vs. Cadillac on July 19. Both games start at 5 p.m. at the GHS baseball field.

GRAYLING COUNTRY CLUB NEWS

by Donna Thomson
Wednesday Ladies League

On May 31 our day of play was rained out. It's no fun playing in the rain, so our make-up day will be August 16.

Last week, on Wednesday, June 7, we started out under dark clouds and then it brightened up a little, and on the last hole the rains came. Nothing seemed to bother these gals, though.

In Flight A, Balkis Shippy had a low net of 32 and Marilyn Hartman had low putts of 14.

In Flight B, there was a tie for low net of 34 between Edie Blaha and Dorothea Carlson. Sharon France had low putts of 12.

In Flight C, Evie Kent had a low net of 40 and Gloria Nielson had low putts of 13.

There were two birdies today by Diana Doremire on #17 and by Jeanette Kitchen on #11. JoAnn Michal had a chip-in on #16.

Cornell Insurance has once again donated umbrellas that will be given away each week to the winner of a mystery hole. Last week it was given to Jeanette Kitchen for closest to the pin on #11.

We then enjoyed a nice lunch of cream of mushroom soup and quiche with fruit or beef plate with cheese.

Our course is in great shape and now beautiful flowers have been planted at our entrance, near the clubhouse, and in certain spots around the course. Makes it such a pleasure to golf and see the beauty all around - deer loping across the fairways and the trumpeter swan on the river.

As we started to leave it cleared up nicely but the weeds and flowers were beckoning for my attention at home, so off I went, but I'm sure others went out to enjoy the day if their clubs hadn't gotten too wet.

Until next week, and hopefully no rain, that's all "fore" now.

2005 Water Quality Report for the City of Grayling

This report covers the drinking water quality for The City of Grayling for the calendar year 2005. This information is a snapshot of the quality of the water that we provided to you in 2005. Included are details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and state standards.

Your water comes from 2 groundwater wells. One well is located off of Connine Dr. (Well 1) and the other is off of Roberts Rd (Well 2). In 2003 the State performed an assessment of our source water and determined Well 1 to have a low susceptibility to contamination and Well 2 to have a moderately low susceptibility. You may obtain a copy of this assessment report from City Hall, 1020 City Boulevard, Grayling, MI 49738.

• Contaminants and their presence in water: Drinking Water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

• Vulnerability of sub-populations: Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune systems disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

• Sources of drinking water: The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. Our water comes from wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

• Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

- Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.
- Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming.
- Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture and residential uses.
- Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.
- Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic systems.

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which provide the same protection for public health.

Water Quality Data

The table below lists all the drinking water contaminants that we detected during the 2005 calendar year. The presence of these contaminants in the water does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. Unless otherwise noted, the data presented in this table is from testing done January 1 - December 31, 2005. The State allows us to monitor for certain contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. All of the data is representative of the water quality, but some are more than one year old.

Terms and abbreviations used below:

- Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG): The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
- Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL): The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
- N/A: not applicable ND: not detectable at testing limit ppb: parts per billion or micrograms per liter ppm: parts per million or milligrams per liter pCi/l: picocuries per liter (a measure of radioactivity). BAA: running annual average AVE: average
- Action Level (AL): The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system must follow.

Samples Collected at the Wellhouse:

Regulated Chemical Contaminants	MCL	MCLG	Our Water	Sample Date	Violation Yes / No	Typical Source of Contaminants
Barium (ppm)	2	2	0.01	06/16/2003	No	Discharge of drilling wastes; Erosion of natural deposits
Fluoride (ppm)	4	4	0.95 to 0.98	05/03/2005	No	Erosion of natural deposits

Unregulated Chemical Contaminants	Our Water	Sample Date	Violation Yes / No	Typical Source of Contaminants
Sodium (ppm)	5 to 7 AVE = 6	05/03/2005	N/A	Erosion of natural deposits
Sulfate (ppm)	6 to 7 AVE = 6.5	05/03/2005	N/A	Erosion of natural deposits

2 Unregulated contaminants are those for which EPA has not established drinking water standards. Monitoring helps EPA to determine where certain contaminants occur and whether it needs to regulate those contaminants.

Samples Collected in the Distribution System:

Contaminants Subject to an Action Level	Action Level, MCL, or MRO	Our Water	Sample Date	Number of Samples Above AL	Typical Source of Contaminants
Lead (ppb) ³	AL = 15	5	08/05/2003	0	Corrosion of household plumbing systems; Erosion of natural deposits
Copper (ppm) ³	AL = 1.3	0.17	08/05/2003	0	Corrosion of household plumbing systems; Erosion of natural deposits; Leaching from wood preservatives

3 90 percent of the samples collected were at or below the level reported for our water.

Monitoring and Reporting Requirements:
The State and EPA require us to test our water on a regular basis to ensure its safety. We met all the monitoring and reporting requirements for 2005.

We, the City of Grayling employees, make every effort to provide quality water to every City of Grayling water tap. We ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources, which are the heart of our community, our way of life, and our children's future. In part of a continuing effort to protect our water sources the City of Grayling began the process of implementing a Wellhead protection program in 2003. A Wellhead protection program is a planning and management approach to protect groundwater supply systems from contamination by identifying and managing potential sources of contamination that can affect water supply wells.

We will update this report annually and will keep you informed of any problems that may occur throughout the year, as they happen. Copies are available at City Hall, 1020 City Boulevard, Grayling, MI 49738, or this report can be viewed on the internet at www.cityofgrayling.org. This report will not be sent to you.

We invite public participation in decisions that affect drinking water quality. City Council meetings are held the second and last Monday of each month, 7:30PM at Grayling City Hall, 1020 City Boulevard, Grayling, MI 49738. For more information about your water, or the contents of this report, contact Chad Beckett at 989-348-2131 or send email to dpw@cityofgrayling.org. For more information about safe drinking water, visit the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency at www.epa.gov/safewater/.

SENIOR RETIREMENT WORKSHOP

You think you have prepared in securing your retirement future.

Think again! The rules have changed!

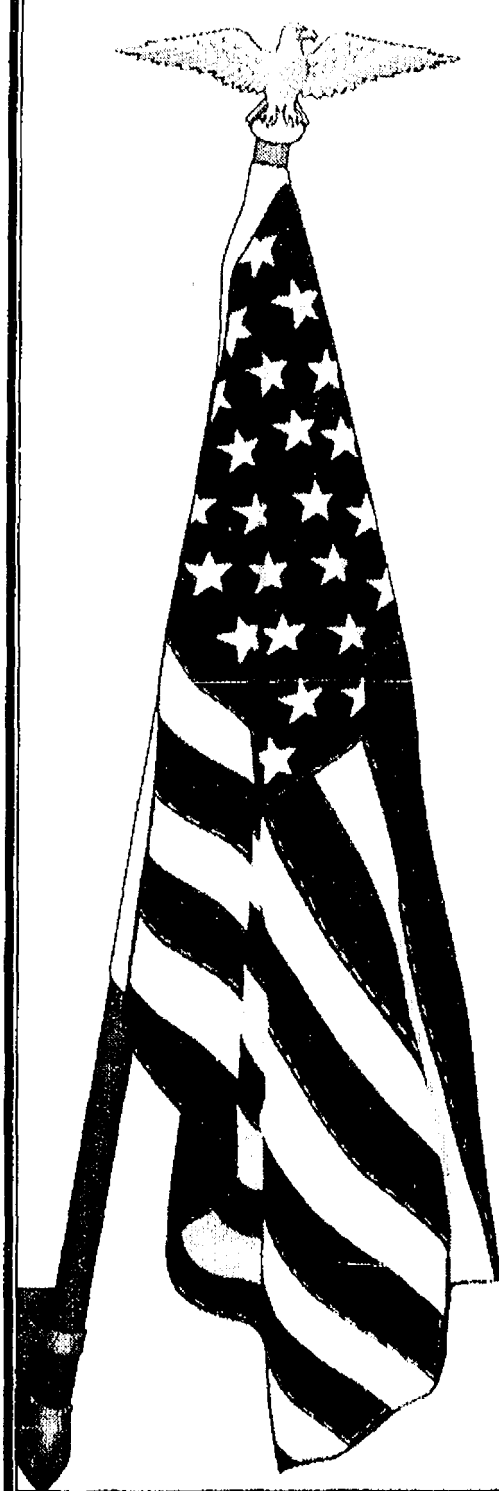

President Bush just signed into law the "Deficit Reduction Act of 2005"! The new law has potential affect for every senior and their children.

The planning that you may have done in the past may not work anymore.

Ask yourself the following questions...

Do I have equity in my home? Do I own an annuity issued before February 8, 2006? Do I own a Long Term Care policy with a three year benefit? Am I or my parents over age 55? Do I want to keep from becoming a burden to my children?

If you answered YES to any of the above questions, you should attend this special free seminar to learn about the new changes and find out what options are available under the new law!

- ★ Your equity in your home could disqualify you from federal benefits.
- ★ The state can now force you to make the state the beneficiary of your annuity.
- ★ There is now a five year look back period for gifts.
- ★ You can now pay for nursing home or homecare without buying traditional Long Term Care Insurance.
- ★ Your children could be forced to be responsible for your healthcare.
- ★ Find out why many seniors opt for a trust over a will.

When: Wednesday, June 21, 2006

Time: 1:00PM to 3:00PM

Where: Beaver Creek Township
